Miss Margaret Rebecca Remine, daughter for all those Paintal Compinious and Weaknesses are common to our best feamle population.

She was a noble young lady, highly esteemed by all who knew her. She was disinguished for her many excellent traits of character. Filial affection was one of these. She was greafly devoted to her parents and delighted to obey and honor them. She was also strongly attached to her brothers and sisters, and tenderly loved them. She possessed a strong, clear intellect, which readily and thoroughly mastered the intricate principles of science. At the time death she was a student in the Greenville District Seminary, at Rheatown, Tennessee, and was making rapid progress in her studies, especially mathematics, in which she excelled.

Humility was another prominent element in her nature. Naturally modest and unassuming, no indications of egotism were ever seen in her life. Though far superior, intellectually and otherwise, to many of her associates, yet she did not seem to realize it, and had the happy faculty of making every one feel pleasant about her. In her disposition she was remarkably genial and cheerful, always gladening the hearts of those with whom she mingled. Unusually kind, gentle and forbearing in her manners. she was a g cat favorite with all her acquaintances. In addition to the virtues already mentioned, she was a devoted christian. At Limestone, Washington County,, Tennessee, in the winter of 1873, she professed religion and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church. Though a mere child when converted, she continued faithful to the dying hour. Two years subsequent to her profession of faith, the writer met her in another series of meetings at Mt. Bethel, in the county referred to above. The pastor proposed that all who would pray for a re-vival should give him their hands. She modestly, yet with holy Christian courage, came forward with a few others and acceded to this proposition. For one so young this was indeed a heavy cross; but she no bly bore it for the Master. God did revive His work on that occasion. A number were converted and her own soul greatly blest.

She was faithful and constant in attending the sanctuary. Her pew was never va-Dyspepsia, Liver cant if it were at all possible for her to occupy it. And oh, how she loved the Sunday-school! Promptly every Sabbath, unless providentially hindered, with a bright, smiling ses. She always studied the lesson at home and was prepared at school for an excellent recitation. She is sadly missed in the M. E. Sabbath School at Limestone. She had her regular hours of private devotion, as the best. which she constantly observed. No giddy throng of thoughtless ones could deter her from bowing at a Throne of Grace and offering secret prayer to her blessed Redeemer, She habitually visited the sick and gave the skin and induces terances, made her almost forget that she was sick. Of course she was ready for death. Though cut down in the bloom and vigor of youth, amid circumstances of the most pleasant character. Yet in holy triumph, he declared that Jesus was with her, died in His arms, and gloriously ascended to her home in the skies, exhorting parents, brothers, sisters, and all present, to meet her in heaven. She also sent messages to many them words of comfort. We have not for-

Her desk was draped in mourning, a beautiful, touching essay was read by Miss Rhoda Inman, and addresses were made by Rev. Prof. Wright, Drs. Morley, McClain, W. D. Good, Esq., and fothers. The school was bathed in tears of sorrow. The Sabbath school of which she was a member adopted the following resolutions on the 4th inst.: Whereas, The All Wise Creator has removed from our school Sister Margaret Rebecca Remine, therefore, Resolved, That in the death of this excellent young lady we have sustained a great loss, she having been one of our most devoted members. Resolved, That while our hearts are filled with sorrow, we bow in meek submission to the will of Him who never errs. Resolved, That we will emulate her virtues, follow her godly example, and try to meet her in that blessed clime to which she declared on her dying pillow she was going. Resolved, That the grief stricken family have our deepest sympathy in their sore Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be furnished them, and that they be published in the Methodist Advocate and ther papers. A memorial sermon was then delivered to large and sorrowful congregation. May the God of all grace comfort the bereaved family and help them to meet the glorified one in the city of the Great King.

The Penitentiary Fire.

The latest estimates fix the loss to Messrs. Cherry, O'Conner & Co., lessees; at $250,000, in round numbers, by the destructive fire at the penitentiary Monday evening, and their actual insurance was $99,000; this includes machinery and material. The loss to the State, in the destruction of buildings, is placed at $35,000. An investigation by Governor Hawkins and Comptroller Nolan, Treasurer Polk and Secretary of State Nunn, exofficio inspectors of the penitentiary, developed the fact that the fire was entirely accidental. It seems that one of the convicts, whose duty it was to black the wagon irons by heating them and dipping them into a kettle of coal tar, heated the iron toe hot, and when it was put in the tar it blazed Cherry, O'Conner & Co., have volunteered to furnish the inspectors with the money to replace the buildings, which will obviate the necessity of an appropriation by the present special session of the Legislature for that purpose. The new buildings will be erected far enough apart to prevent another such cor flagration, and will be so arranged that they can be sold for manufacturing purposes, in the event of the removal of the penitentiary.

Speaking of the operations of Messrs. Cherry, O'Conner & Co., the American says: Few are aware of the immense business. done by this firm. In the first place they have had to provide a stock of lumber two years ahead of its use, They received 100 car loads of lumber by rail per month and an equal quantity by river. ber is hauled to them out of Davidson county, as far as fifteen miles. From October 1, 1880, to October 1, 1881, they expended $815 000 for lumber alone. They have established a mill near Celina on the Upper Cumberland, and this has been sawing out a large amount of lumber, which was brought here by river.

The lessees confine themselves to the manufacture of wagons, making, before the fire. an average of forty-five wagons complete, per day; castings, stoves and hollow ware, making 8,000 pounds per day, and furni-ture, making from $90,000 to $100,000 per

The Inspectors have advertised for plans for the new shops contemplated. They have received from the Superintendent and Warden a communication urging that prompt and immediate action be taken to replace the buildings. An estimate has been drawn up fixing the cost of erecting the buildings that are necessary at $44,500.
